Shadow Checkerboard Baby Blanket

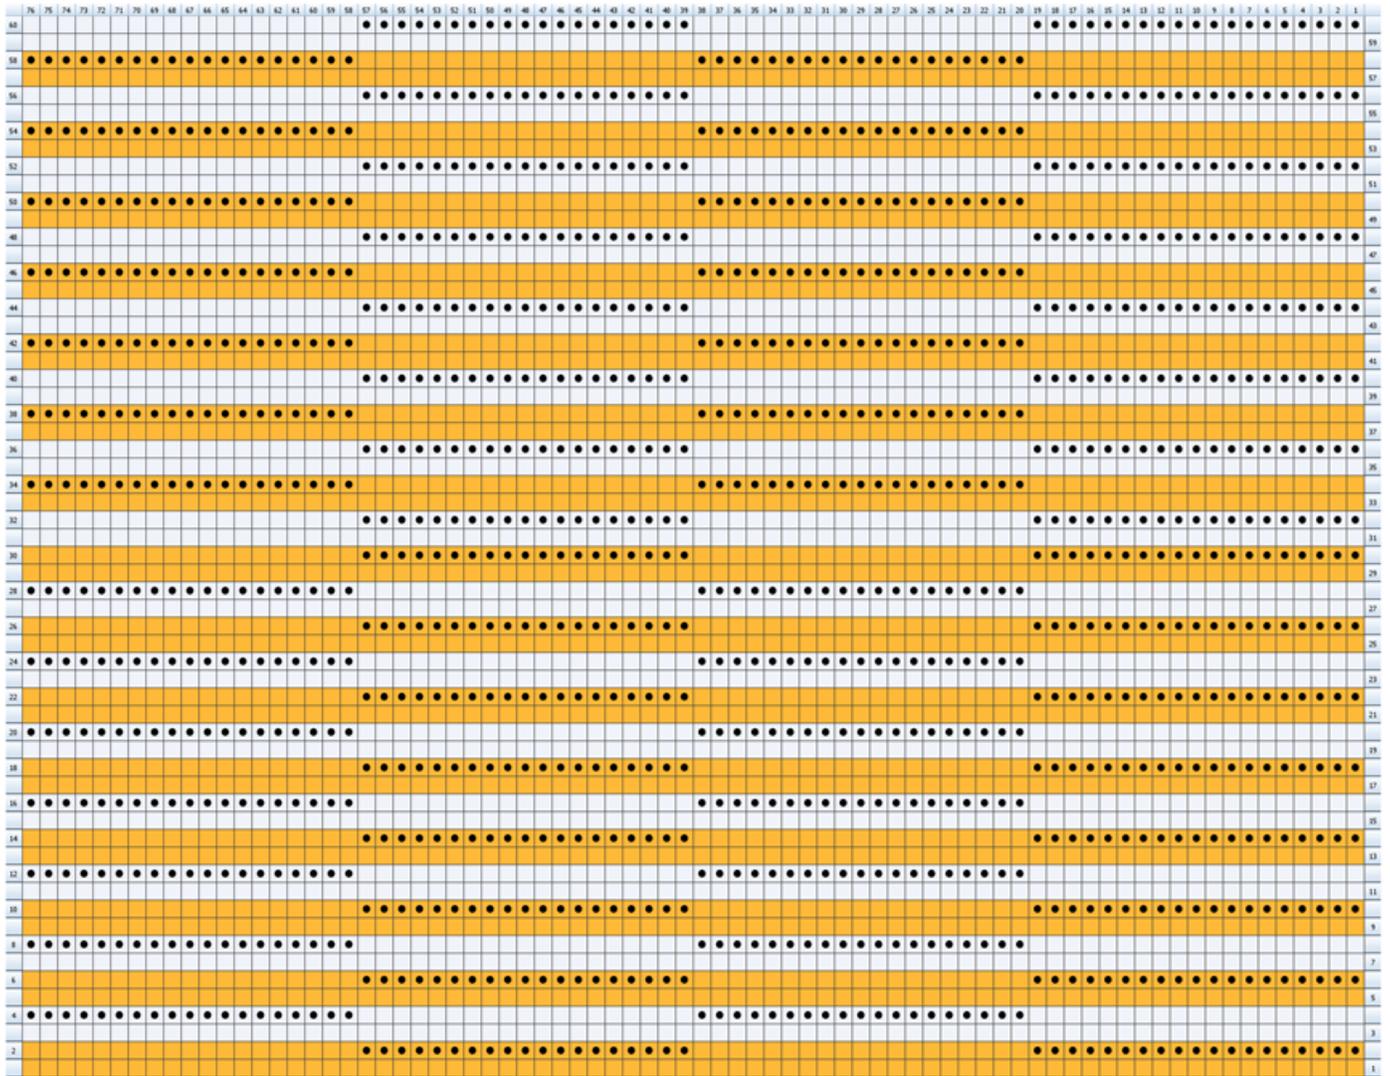

By Clara Masessa

If you've never shadow knit before, this baby blanket is a great way to learn! Shadow knitting is a very clever technique that looks like stripes when viewed straight on but when you look from the side, the pattern is revealed. This blanket would look sweet in baby colors, bright crayon colors, or non-traditional colors as shown. Just keep in mind that the pattern will show best if you choose a light and a dark color. Colors close in tone won't show the pattern.

Designer Note

- ⇒ Start with the dark colored yarn, this afghan is knit by alternating 2 rows of the dark colored yarn and 2 rows of the light colored yarn. The first row (RS) of each color is all knit stitches. All the patterning is done on the wrong side rows and because of that, the instructions will list the even # rows (WS) only.
- ⇒ When choosing colors for this project, choose contrasting colors.

Rows 35 – 58: Repeat rows 31 – 34, keeping in pattern and color sequence. (refer to chart)

Repeat the 60 rows 3 more times. BO with CC (light colored yarn).
